Dies to Dig Deeper Into Fascist Secrets—More Witnesses Scheduled to Face Committee

WASHINGTON—Contrary to general impression, the Dies committee is not nearly through with its inquiry into the activity of Fascist-type organizations. It was freely predicted here that the committee would drop the whole subject when it got through with General Moseley. As a matter of fact, it has an extensive program ahead of it. In the current recess, the plan of campaign is being perfected.

Polish Jews Will Be Excluded From German Territory

More Than 1,000 Being Rounded Up by Secret Police

FACE DEPORTATION

Further Aggression to Be Resisted Says Lord Halifax

BERLIN, Germany—(AP)—Polish Jews numbering more than 1,000 in Germany were reported being rounded up Thursday by secret police—either for deportation or concentration camps—in a new Nazi effort to get rid of foreign Jews.

Jews said that two general reasons were given for the campaign, the first was that Germany would not tolerate foreigners without passports, and the second that it was a measure to counter recent Polish deportations of German citizens.

HAVANA—(AP)—Cuban authorities allowed six of 97 German Jewish refugees aboard the liner Flandre to land here Thursday.

They said their passports were in order and that guarantees had been given them through the Cuban embassy in Washington.

Hits at Dictators
LONDON, England—(AP)—Lord Halifax, British foreign secretary, declared Thursday that the time had passed when European nations could be destroyed by the actions of one state.

He said that it was clear now that any further attempt at aggression would "meet with a wide and resolute resistance."

He spoke in foreign affairs debate in the House of Lords.

Dr. Cromer Named Medical Director

Will Succeed Dr. Frank Vinsonhale at U. of A. School

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—Dr. Stuart P. Cromer of Chicago was elected dean of the University of Arkansas medical school at a meeting here Wednesday night of the personnel committee of the University of Arkansas board of trustees.

Dr. Cromer, a member of the staff of the council of education and hospitals of the American Medical Association, attended the meeting and accepted the position. He will assume his new duties July 1, succeeding Dr. Frank Vinsonhale, who recently resigned to become dean emeritus.

Trustees meeting at Fayetteville authorized the personnel committee to make the selection.

The new dean holds M. D. and Ph. D. degrees from Northwestern University and has served on medical school faculties at Baylor University, Waco, Texas, Northwestern University and the University of Illinois. He was in charge of a medical association committee which made a survey of hospitals in Mississippi last year.

Expressing gratitude at being able to obtain Dr. Cromer's services, President J. C. Futrell of the university declared that the new dean's experience in medical education and operation of hospitals would be valuable assets.

Texas has approximately 22,500 miles of highways.

Suppose you're visiting Washington, D. C. A tourist comes up and asks you the following questions about the capital and the government.

You don't want to let on that you're a tourist, too, do you? It will take at least three correct answers to fool the questioner.

1. If the President and vice president both die in office, who becomes President?

2. Where is the original Declaration of Independence kept?

3. In which of the two houses of Congress must money-raising bills originate?

4. What President's statue occupies the center of the park which faces the Pennsylvania avenue entrance to the White House?

5. What cabinet officer is responsible for chartering bays, harbors, and other navigable waters in the U. S.?

Funeral Services Held Thursday for Accident Victim

Body of Finley Cornelius of Hope Found on Railroad Tracks

WAS EN ROUTE HOME

Accident Occurs Near Jonesboro—Body Returned Here

The body of Finley Cornelius, 38, of Hope, who was killed in a railroad accident Wednesday near Fisher, Polk county, was scheduled to arrive in Hope at 1:40 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

Funeral services were to follow at the Herndon-Cornelius home on South Main street with burial in Rose Hill cemetery.

The body of Mr. Cornelius was found on the Cotton Belt tracks Wednesday, and he apparently had been struck by a passing train, reports said.

Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius had been visiting relatives in Jonesboro and Mr. Cornelius had left supposedly to return to his home in Hope.

Mr. Cornelius was born and reared in Hope and was a water-well driller. Besides his widow, he is survived by his father, D. E. Cornelius of Hope; one brother, Regan of Hope; three sisters, Mrs. Oscar Pritchard of Hope; Mrs. Alva Upchurch of Little Rock; and Mrs. Nettie Holcomb of Little Rock.

Special Lighting for Stage Revue

Mrs. Ogburn's Pupils to Be Presented in "Summertime"

Hope will have its first showing of the ultra-violet light on the Saenger stage Thursday night when the Ogburn School of Dancing presents its annual revue, "Summertime" at 8:30 o'clock. Many novel effects are achieved under this light which was procured from Deziari's Inc., in New York city, and offers local theatergoers something new in the entertainment field.

However, the lights is only one of the novelties that go to make up the stage show. The first act entitled "Story Book Land" makes use of a set of books six feet high. The second act presents scenes in miniature from the New Orleans Mardi Gras. The most unusual of these is a cowboy number in which "Hi-O Silver" himself, in the (horse) flesh will make his stage debut.

A beautiful garden scene will depict "The Return of Summer" and in it Mrs. Ogburn will present her groups of toe dancers in a little ballet modeled after the famous Ballet Russe. The closing number "Summertime" from the late George Gershwin's opera, will climax the show with its 20 performers in specially processed Cortina under the ultra-violet light.

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—After conferring more than an hour with Governor Bailey, trustees of the University of Arkansas adjourned subject to call Thursday without selecting successors to either Dan T. Gray, resigned dean of the college of agriculture, or C. C. Randall, ousted executive head of the far extension service.

"We ran into complications on first one thing and then another, and were unable to select a successor to either position," the governor said.

The board, however, gave President Futrell an increase in salary of $1,500 a year, placing his new yearly salary at $7,500.

Approximately 200 Attend Fish Fry

Stricter Enforcement of Law Is Urged by State Officials

Approximately 200 persons attended the Fish Fry and outing of the Hempstead County Wildlife association at the Hope county club Wednesday night where officials urged stricter enforcement of fish and game laws.

Lloyd Spencer, president of the county association, acted as master of ceremonies and introduced the speakers.

Dick Huddleston, state president of the Wildlife association was the featured speaker. Before discussing the state game and fish laws, Mr. Huddleston told of the county's famed watermelons and of the publicity Hope had gained in other states as a watermelon center.

He pleaded for a stricter enforcement of the law to preserve the state's wildlife and promised that when he returned to another meeting of the county association he would bring his famed hillbilly band.

Other talks were made by D. N. Graves and Dick Jackson, representing this district for the Arkansas Game and Fish Commission.

The program was brought to a close with a brief speech by E. P. Young of Hope who said that the best sportsmen in the world could be found in Hope and Hempstead county.

More than 100 pounds of fish was served.

Senator Caraway Gets Ready for British Royalty Party

She Will Be Only One of Arkansas Delegation to Attend—Others Glad They Didn't Receive Invitations for Formal Affair

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Senator Hattie W. Caraway slipped into a long flowing black lace dress, surveyed herself in a mirror, and mumbled to the vision she saw, "OK, that'll do." By that she meant she was all ready to go to Thursday's afternoon's big garden party at the British embassy for England's king and queen, the party all Washington has been talking about for weeks.

Mrs. Caraway smilingly agreed she'd be on her very best behavior as the only member of the Arkansas congressional delegation attending. Senator John E. Miller being at his home in Searcy, where Mrs. Miller is ill.

Senator Caraway was undecided about a number of things as the time neared for the eventual party, among them, whether she would curtsy to the royal visitors.

"I suppose it will depend on how the notion strikes me," she said, smiling again.

Those close to the nation's only woman senator are authority for the information that she can execute a very neat curtsy, should the mood and occasion arise.

The same sources reported she had demonstrated the curtsy for intimate friends, just to quiet all possible doubt.

Pinned down on the report, Mrs. Caraway confessed.

"Oh, yes, I can curtsy all right," she said. "You step the left foot back and bend the right knee. I know how it's done. But, you see, I don't know whether we'll be presented to the king and queen at the party. If we are, I'll do whatever seems best at the time. I do not believe our visitors expect it, though."

Even a casual conversation with members of the Arkansas delegation in the house dissipated any idea there would be widespread disappointment among them over failure to receive invitations to the party. Such invitations were confined for the most part to chairmen of house committees and members of the foreign affairs committee.

"I'm mighty glad I didn't get invited," chuckled E. C. (Took) Gathings of West Memphis, "I haven't anything against the king and queen, of course, but I've got plenty against the kind of clothes expected to be worn at a party like that. What would my friends say if they saw me strolling around a garden in a cutaway and striped pants?"

Clyde Ellis of Bentonville echoed these sentiments, as did W. F. Norrell of Monticello.

Nor were Dave Terry, Wade Kitchens or Wilbur Mills visibly disappointed.

As one of them put it, "We'll feel a lot more comfortable this afternoon

King and Queen of England Received By High Officials

President Roosevelt and King George Shake Hands

15-MINUTE CEREMONY

Large Crowds Break Into Wild Cheering Near White House

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A smile and handshake from President Roosevelt and a bombing salute of military honors welcomed King George of Britain Thursday to this capital of a republic which has grown great from the 13 one-time English colonies.

Their faces crinkled into cordial smiles as their hands met as if to symbolize ties of friendship between two English speaking peoples who parted ways in 1776.

Secretary of State Hull who accompanied the King and Queen from Canada, introduced them.

"Mr. President, I have the honor to present their Britannic majesties," Hull said.

"How are you? I'm glad to see you," Roosevelt said.

Ceremonies Brief
Presentation ceremonies took scarcely 15 minutes. Then the official procession started for the White House.

A huge sounded as the royal party approached the capitol, preceded by a pure white police car and a motorcycle escort and a detachment of the cavalry.

A large crowd broke into wild cheering as the procession near the White House.

After meeting high ranking government officials in the White House, the royal party, escorted to private chambers on the second floor, where they were to change into informal dress for a small luncheon with the president's family.

Garden Party Planned
For Washington society the embassy garden party furnishes the day's high spot. Some 1,400 lucky ones have been invited and the ladies for weeks have been worrying about dresses, hats and the question whether they should curtsy before the queen.

For the men, Lady Lindsay, the wife of the ambassador, has said that white linens will be just as correct as the grey toppers and cutaways traditional to British garden parties.

Months ago 25,000 strawberries, of uniform size and perfect ripeness, and gallons of double-cream were ordered for the affair. There will be hundreds of fancy cakes and sandwiches, and tea and a punch with a white wine base.

Mrs. Roosevelt said there would be 83 or 84 guests at the state dinner, and a few additional friends have been asked in for a musical scheduled to follow it. They will hear Marian Anderson, negro contralto; Lawrence Tibbett, American baritone, and an Indian baritone, Ish To Opi.

There will be mountain music and mountain dancers, a strictly American program.

Water Main Break Near Snyder Hotel

Service Is Restored After Break in Six-Inch Main

Two holes blew out in a six-inch water main near the Snyder hotel Wednesday, causing water to be shut off for several hours in the city before it could be repaired.

C. O. Thomas, water and light plant superintendent, said that valves controlling the trouble area failed to function after the break—which necessitated the shutting off of water in a larger portion of the city.

The break occurred six feet under the pavement, and it was several hours before it could be repaired.

Mr. Thomas blamed the break on old equipment, and said that in the near future new controlling valves would replace the old ones in that area.

Purely Physical Factors May Greatly Influence the Mental State

As we come to learn more of the relationship between the mind and the body, modern psychiatry emphasizes that mental disturbances may arise from physical changes, and that physical conditions in some portions of the body may be reactions of the body to emotional disturbances or psychological incapacity; in some patients both factors may be working at the same time.

For instance, a man may suffer with serious changes in the circulation in his brain which would give him dizziness and headache. At the same time, however, he might be so frightened of what was happening to him that he would develop a state of constant fear, as a result of which he would lose his appetite, be unable to sleep and be constantly depressed.

The modern psychiatrist, therefore, must approach disease from both points of view—from the point of view of the physical changes that have taken place in the body and from the point of view of the mental disturbances which result in physical changes. One needs only to think of the reaction of the average person when he feels disgusted at having smelled a bad odor to realize how a nonemotional condition can react physically—thus he might spit or vomit.

In the same way a person who has suddenly seen another person shot or fall from a height may react with physical responses which are the result of mental disturbances.

Few people ever stop to realize how greatly our bodies are controlled by our environment or the civilization in which we live. Thus we eat at certain times—that is, three times a day—because our work is arranged in relationship to such regular habits of eating. Most of us sleep at night, but it is quite possible to have people work at night and sleep in the daytime.

A child naturally grabs for food and eats it with his hands. It becomes necessary to train his mind to make him eat his food slowly and to make him use knife, fork and spoon in the proper manner. I have seen a child, not previously educated in such matters, get out of his high chair and crawl on the table to get something it wanted. The parents, who did not believe in social control, paid no attention to the matter.

However, if the child is to live eventually in a social order like that of the present, parents will be doing the child a kindness in training it to ask for what it wants at the table.

Modern psychiatry also places a great deal of stress on the sex life. Unquestionably the functions related

We, the Women

By RUTH MILLETT

The world is full of good, well-meaning hostesses. But the woman who can keep a guest happy and entertained for a whole weekend is a rare creature.

She doesn't work any harder than the least successful hostess—often not as hard—but she realizes what things are important to guests, and sees that they have these things.

She puts comfort first and her guest room has all the creature comforts, a good bed light for reading extra cover folded on the bed, an empty closet well supplied with hangers, a clock, a jug of ice water, and, of course, a comfortable bed.

She knows that nothing makes a guest more ill-at-ease than feeling that he is causing a lot of trouble. And so she does whatever work she has to do without fuss and strain. And she doesn't cluck over her guest's comfort like a hen looking out for a weak chick.

In handy and tempting places, she scatters magazines and new books, knowing that if he has something interesting to read no guest is going to mind his hostess' leaving him to do her work.

Not Mechanical About Her Plans

She has planned the weekend thoughtfully so that there is plenty to do but not enough to wear her guest out. However, she doesn't cling grimly to her plans if something better turns up.

She doesn't chatter continually, but gives her guest a chance to talk. And she isn't afraid of long silences when everyone seems happy and contented, just relaxing.

Lighting the whole week-end is her real pleasure in having a person she likes in her room. Her whole attitude is "It's so nice to have you here." If she shows it—she doesn't have to say it.

The Fruits of Conquest

There is considerable evidence right now that things are not going too well with Japan in its attempt to conquer China.

Up to now the preponderance of military success has been with the Rising Sun. But news now comes from the district north of Hankow that the Chinese are striking back with remarkable success. The effort to organize Chinese in the occupied territory to fight Chinese outside it has not been successful. The continual wearing away of guerrilla warfare is not doing the far-flung Japanese troops any good. And the strain of month after weary month of what was to have been a quick and brilliant victory is a very trying one, both from the military and the financial angle.

The war cost, in men, money, and resources, is piling up—and precious little is coming back from China except the endless stream of little urns containing ashes of what were Japan's best young men.

There is evidence which, on the face of it, indicates an increasing desperation on the part of Japan. The decision to interfere arbitrarily with the ordinary neutral trade of what is left of China is one which may offend powerful nations like the British and American, neither of which is without power in the Pacific.

Such policies are not idly or thoughtlessly adopted. Increasing desperation in civilian bombings and restriction of medical supplies and relief food reaching the Chinese are not marks of confidence.

Meanwhile Japan is gradually losing the foreign markets in the gaining of which her star rose so meteorically in the years preceding the Chinese adventure.

A country making the all-embracing effort of a vast war on the foreign soil can scarcely give the attention to foreign trade which it demands. Germany found that out in 1914-1918, and even today with her industrial plant centered on the arms industry, she knows it is true. Japan is unable to buy abroad as freely as before its Chinese war because of a shortage of foreign exchange. It cannot fill foreign orders as surely or as promptly.

There has been some increase of export to the Chinese occupied territory in Manchuria and north China. But it is very doubtful if it compensates for losses elsewhere.

The war is now approaching the end of its second year; it is costing Japan a billion and a half dollars a year in straight appropriations alone. The Japanese population is beginning to feel the pinch.

Leaving moral considerations aside for the moment, does all this pay?

Nothing Heard Or Seen

What did you see today?
"Nothing," I heard him say
Yet he had gone blindly by
Martins that wheeled the sky;
Blossoms new come to birth;
The fresh cool grass and earth
With her wild flung arms
Tossing up endless charms.
What did you hear today?
"Nothing," I heard him say;
Yet he had walked along
Paths where the sweetest song
Past human gifts to match
Rang for his ears to catch.
Lark! That triumphant strain
Asked for his ears in vain.
What are these fresh and cares
Man, so submissive bears
That he can pass along
Dumb to a cardinal's song?
What is it that he seeks
Here in life's loveliest weeks
That he goes blindly by
Of glory and earth and sky? — E. A. G.

monthly business and social meeting at the Fair park Tuesday night. Games were played, after which a delightful weiner roast with all the trimmings, was enjoyed by all.

Wake up tomorrow morning
A new word in your mind;
Wake up tomorrow morning
Determined to be kind.
A little smile of greeting,
Some friendly word you say,
Will make the man you're meeting
Feel better all the day.

So They Say

Oh, dear, oh, dear!
Oh, dear, oh, dear!—Queen Mary of England, 71, after being helped out of the wreck of her car which was rolled over and smashed by a truck.
This time of it times is not one in which the people in this country can afford even the appearance of treating lightly promises which we have led others to trust.—The Archbishop of Canterbury, on the Palestine situation.

We are all horrified at the extent to which international obligations have become the merest scraps of paper.—Bishop E. M. Stires, of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Long Island.
Memory is faulty in many matters, but men that are men remember charity in at least one of its two phases—either to be charitable or to be grateful.—Archbishop Spellman of New York, in his address following his installation.

There is one way to prevent war—and one only—the formation of binding military alliances with all those countries who desire peace and the preparation of armaments on such a scale as to intimidate all possible aggressors.—Sir Alfred Duff-Cooper of England.

Realism of Battle Scenes in GWTW to Be Almost On the Set Gets a Shock at Sights Overpowering in Make-Believe, the Spectator

HOLLYWOOD—In the third year of preparation and in the 15th week of actual production, "Gone With the Wind" is getting around to the fall of Atlanta. Right now the guns of the attackers and the willing remnants of the defenders can be heard from the town. Atlanta will be evacuated soon, left with flaming buildings to light the way of the invasion. And then Rhett Butler and Scarlett and Melanie and her baby will make their mad dash in the wagon.

But today, Melanie's baby hasn't been born, and Scarlett has come down from the house on Peachtree street looking for Dr. Meade. She has been told that he is helping attend the wounded who are being placed on the railroad tracks by the depot.

It is just as it was in the book, "Lying in the pillbox sun, shoulder to shoulder, were hundreds of wounded men, lining the tracks, the sidewalks, stretched out in endless rows under the car shed. Some lay stiff and still, but many writhed under the hot sun, moaning. Everywhere swarms of flies . . . everywhere was blood, dirty bandages. . . . The ambulance men hurrying here and there among the prostrate forms frequently stepped on wounded men, so thickly packed were the rows, and those trodden upon stared stolidly up, waiting their turn. . . . As she walked (among them) feverish hands plucked at her skirt and voices croaked, 'Lady—water! Please, lady, water!'

David Selznick has hired some 1200 extras—every man he could get. Each studio has companies working outdoors because this is the first cloudless day in nearly two weeks. Consequently extras are hard to find, and there is an especially critical shortage of makeup men because these wounded soldiers require a lot of work.

Shocking, Even in Make-Believe Even if it is all make-believe, this is a shocking thing to see. Most of the one-armed and one-legged extras in Hollywood have had red stained bandages wrapped around their stumps. Every man is bandaged somewhere; all are unshaven and really dirty. Even the visitors on the set are dirty. The red dust indigenous to Atlanta has been reproduced here, for Technicolor's benefit, by tons of brick dust.

The wounded are distributed and rearranged many times by assistant directors to gain the maximum effect for the camera. Toward the edge of the set, scattered among the living, are hundreds of motionless figures which turn out to be dummies. The prop department labored overtime to make those ghostly forms.

Before the first rehearsal, a crew of makeup men scurries among the prostrate extras applying more bandages and fresh gore. The large bottles they carry are matter-of-factly labeled "Panchromatic Blood," and the fluid is a mixture of raspberry juice with color heightened by cochineal dye. "It's my fifth bottle!" panted one of the experts as he dabbed the apron of a perspiring surgeon.

Magnificent Panorama The railroad station, which along with several adjacent blocks of the city has been exactly reproduced from photographs, occupies a space of perhaps two acres, and over most of this will swing the omniscient eye of the camera. The biggest "boom shot" in Hollywood history is about to be filmed because Selznick has hired for the occasion a huge wrecking crane. The vehicle on which it is mounted runs on 28 pneumatic tires. The crane operator sits about 12 feet from the ground, and from there the boom itself extends 72 feet over the closely-packed field of soldiers. From the boom's end is suspended a platform occupied by camera and crew.

From her dressing room instead of Aunt Pittypat's house three blocks from the station, Vivien Leigh comes to look for Dr. Meade. The camera is swung low and close as she rounds the corner of the Atlanta Hotel and halls, appalled, at the sight of the depot and trucks. Then she braces herself and goes out among them. The camera swings up and back-up and up until the lens embraces the whole scene with the small figure of Scarlett moving from upper right to lower left through the mass of men. Finally the camera, high in the air, shoots down past a Confederate flag. "Cut!" yells Director Victor Fleming. And that's that.

Those Mysterious Mound Builders

Interesting new approach to Unsettled States history and graphic picture of the people who settled the country is Emil Jordan's "Americans" (Norton: $3.50). Mr. Jordan portrays these Americans from the Indians to the European immigrant. Below his picture of the Mound Builders is brief.

The strange, gigantic mounds and earthworks which still adorn the countryside of Ohio and other regions of the Mississippi valley fired our imaginations and challenged our curiosity. But how far can we safely follow these visions without getting lost in sheer fantasy?

Several facts make it difficult to solve the riddle of these early Indians (Mound Builders); they created great, imposing structures which the later inhabitants of the same territory were not able to duplicate; they left no recognized descendants; and there was no traditional or even legendary knowledge of them with any tribe of American Indians. Yet, by weighing the significance of the relics found in Ohio we may be able to unearth a few interesting details.

The attempt has been made to link the Mound Builders racially to the Pueblo Indians of New Mexico and the Aztecs of Mexico because of the relatively high standards of both civilizations. But no adobe structures, so typical of the Pueblo Indians, have been found in Ohio. There is other evidence that speaks against the supposition of a close relationship: tobacco smoking, which was immensely popular with the Mound Builders, was uncommon among the Aztecs. While the former used pipes—they have left thousands of them buried in the Ohio mounds—the ancient Mexicans used tobacco almost exclusively for ceremonial purposes; they did not know the calumet, the peace pipe, nor had they a word for it.

The riddle which has most persistently defied all efforts to solve is the date of the Mound Builders' civilization. Some estimates have made them contemporaries of the Egyptian Pharaohs and pyramid builders; others have placed them in the time of Jesus Christ. Competent authorities believe that the first manifestation of an American semicivilization should not be dated back farther than about 6000 years.

ing, this film has been unanimously acclaimed by critics and others who witnessed its recent world premiere at Hollywood Theater.

Warner Bros. announced their intention to film "Juarez" in September, 1937, with Jack L. Warner, vice president in charge of production, Hal B. Wallis, executive producer and Henry W. Blank, associate producer. Writers were assigned to develop the screen play at that time. Paul Muni was to play Benito Pablo Juarez, savior of Mexico's democracy and the greatest popular hero that republic ever has known. Bette Davis was to be costarred, as the tragic Empress Carlotta, and the plot theme was to be confined to those years between 1863 and 1887, the period during which Mexico had both a president, Juarez, and an emperor, Maximilian.

To Ask Reduction in Activity of WPA

Theater and Writer's Projects Will Be First to Be Cut Off

WASHINGTON, June 7 (AP)—Informed legislators said that the House subcommittee investigating the federal relief system would recommend curtailment, but not abolition of the WPA for the next fiscal year.

Various substitutes for the present set-up had been proposed as a result of criticism of the agency but it was learned that subcommittee members felt there was too little time before July 1 the start of the new fiscal year to make a drastic change.

House members said that other fundamental changes would be proposed, possibly including abolition of the WPA's theater and writers projects. Both have been denounced by congressional committees as media for the dissemination of Communist propaganda.

KIDNEYS MUST REMOVE EXCESS ACIDS

Help 15 Million of Kidney Tubes Flush Out Poisons

If you have an excess of acid waste in your blood, your 15 million of kidney tubes may be overworked. These tiny filters and tubes are working day and night to help Nature rid your system of poisonous waste.

When functional kidney disorder permits the poisonous matter to remain in the blood, you won't feel well. This may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling of ankles, swelling of fingers under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. If you have trouble with frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning, there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Kidneys may need help the same as bowels, so ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 million of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

RAISING A FAMILY

By Olive Roberts Barton

It's Time to Crack Down When "Fun" Is Vandalism.

Mrs. Dale surveyed the wreckage when the party had gone. It was Bud's thirteenth birthday, and she had invited a dozen or so of his cronies in for a feast.

They had thrown the strawberries from the fruit cocktail at each other and some had been tramped in the light blue rug. Then the bean-burn had meant every bed pillow in the house torn off, the pillows thrown about at least one broken vase, nicked in the furniture, and the freshly waxed floor all scuffed up.

"That was a bully party," grinned Bud. "The fellows had a swell time."

You can always tell when they have a good time. I feel more like it now. They always treated me as though I was sort of an outsider. I bet I know them better than I ever did, and we've been here two years.

"I know them better, too," thought Mrs. Dale. But she said aloud, "I am so glad of that, son. They got a little rough, but I guess boys always do that. Maybe you act that way at parties, too."

"Do you know, that's right, mommy," I spoiled Mrs. Evan's table cloth. I forgot to tell you. I knocked a candle

Washington Daybook

By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — This business of exploring the Antarctic always appeared to us so much piffle but the Government is taking it seriously just now and that means Captain Richard Black will have to give up the South Sea and take to the ice packs.

Black, a curly haired engineer, is the Department of the Interior's only authentic Antarctic explorer. He went to Little America with Admiral Byrd on his second expedition.

Every expedition either to the Arctic or the Antarctic has to have a motive. Most of the recent ones starting from this country have explained they were going there to hunt weather data. The weather bureau says it has some importance.

Double-Barreled Purpose

But the current proposal, which is supported by Admiral Byrd, is advanced on a double basis, protection of whaling rights and securing our claims to that part of the Antarctic already explored by Americans, including Byrd, Ellsworth and perhaps others.

The idea has been mulled over by various Government agencies for several months but it was given an especial flip when Germany recently laid claim to a whaling tract right in the heart of territory long claimed by Norwegians. The State Department geographer, Samuel W. Boggs, told us that the claim was close to the border line but didn't quite penetrate the western hemisphere so we won't over and it burnt a hole."

Must Pay For Damages

"Malcolm McAllister Dale, you never did. Why, Mrs. Evans never even mentioned it. What has she been thinking about you? And why didn't you tell me? That was dreadful, Bud. I'll have to do something about it. Was it her lace cloth?"

"But she has invited all you boys to a picnic on Saturday. She seems to hold no ill will?"

"Oh, no, not her. She always says, 'What is a bit of frumpiness compared to a boy?'"

"That's very noble, but see here, son. Just because you chaps think you own the earth is no reason for destroying things. I am going to make you pay for the cloth. Where's your bank?"

have to send the Navy down there to drive them out.

Whales are being wiped out pretty fast, what with Germany, England, Japan and Norway now in the field with these tremendous factory ships. It is sort of like sending the Chicago packing houses galloping up all the cattle in sight. Germany uses whale oil for butter and we use it for soap. If that means anything. Japan trades hers to us in exchange for fuel oil for her busy war machine.

But all these things are only the big motivating forces Captain Black is more immediately concerned with the question of getting congressional approval for the expedition. Admiral Byrd's trips cost close to a million dollars each. Plans are to make the Government job cost a lot less by using government boats, planes and other facilities. Governments rarely get more for less, but it the plan anyway.

Worked In South Seas

Shortly after his return from the second Byrd expedition, Captain Black was hired by the Interior Department to perfect the U. S. claim to Canton and Ensenbury islands, those flat, 120 miles or so, which we are planning to use some time as trans-Pacific airplane stations. They are sort of the way just now but you never can tell when they may come in handy.

Maybe it is that way with the Antarctic.

Black has made four trips a year to Canton and Ensenbury, taking supplies from Honolulu to the Hawaiian college boys who were living on the two islands. He was stationed at Honolulu until he was recalled here in February to begin working on plans. Admiral Byrd doesn't head the expedition, Black may.

Black is a graduate of the University of North Dakota.

"That is where I got my first experience with Arctic weather," he said.

BRIDE ON A BUDGET

BY JANET DORAN

COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

Bedroom, knew that.

By the time she had discovered the tailored linen blouse with the French cuffs, the alligator pumps, and the pinseal purse, the weekly pay checks of Miss Iris Ives were mortgaged for six months to come. But by then, Iris didn't care.

By then, she was sure, Bart would change his mind. The suit would do that.

"You ought to model, Miss Ives," the salesgirl had flattered her, when she tried on the suit. Secretly, Iris had always thought she should too. But models led precarious lives, and a private secretary, while not getting anything glamorous in the way of salary, did have a definite sum to depend on each week.

"Do you budget, Miss Ives?" the salesgirl went on. Iris nodded. She honestly believed she did. She honestly believed this was the trick in looking like a debutante, on a private secretary's salary.

At least, she bought her clothes in budget shops, agreed to pay so much a week, and because she was a living, lovely advertisement for the clothes, was able to explain, prettily, to credit managers, why this week's installment would have to go over until next week, because she had to go to the dentist. (Or the doctor, or pay her insurance, of which there was none, only it was a grand alibi, or anything else that occurred to her at the time as suitable explanation for robbing Peter to pacify Paul.)

secret. But the steak was the main item. Even Bart raved about it. "Good steak feed costs you $1.50 these times; and you cook one for a fraction of that, Iris. I don't see how you do it."

Iris never told him, Bart was a hound for figures and if he knew how much these Saturday suppers cost her, there'd be a riot. Too, he thought she cooked the things herself.

STILL it was worth it. Bart had his own little radio shop, and was coming along fine. And he was by far the most attractive man she had ever known. Though he hadn't reached the point yet where he realized the value of dressing to look the part of a successful, rising young business man.

"What for, Iris?" he argued, when she mentioned a sale on men's suits once. "Why should I mortgage my future just to keep up with the Joneses? This suit is good enough for me—had it three years now, and there's still plenty of good wear left in it. A man has to think of his business these days."

So he hadn't bought the suit. But secretly, Iris speculated on what she could do to improve him. He was really quite handsome. Not quite so tall as some of the flattery boys she had known from Fraternity Row, but well-built.

A sturdy, dependable young man, Bart Whitaker. Ambitious, thrifty. A good catch. And when a girl was sliding into her 26th year, she had to consider such things.

THE evening paper was folded on the smoking stand, and Iris stood behind the new chair, wearing the new slipper satin house coat that zipped to the very floor, and made her waist look not an inch more than 20 inches. Bart hung open the door and grinned. "Hi, honey," he greeted her. Not noticing the new housecoat which had cost $11, and was palest lilac satin with a sash of deep royal purple, noticing only the new lounge chair, so deep and inviting and comfortable looking. And the paper on the smoking stand.

"Hey, what is this, a wifely touch? Or do I notice a little solid comfort offered the tired business?"

"Good!" Iris chuckled, but house coat, and the good food, and the comfortable lounge chair had failed to do. It would make Bart realize she was an attractive girl. Make him see she wouldn't languish around unnoticed, unappreciated forever.

Over the shortcake, Iris mentioned the offer the dean's wife had made her.

"They're going to Japan for the summer vacation, Bart, and they want me to go along too. He plans to do a book on his travels."

"Great," Bart began enthusiastically, "chance of a lifetime for you honey. Nothing like travel—and with all your expenses paid."

Iris cleared away the things, stacked them in the sink. She slipped out of the house coat and into the suit. Then she came out quietly, so not to rouse Bart from his paper. Standing before him, she swept the paper aside and watched recognition leap alive in his face.

"You see, darling," she told him regretfully, "I might not come back to Linwood, after a trip like that. Though of course there's a chance I might decide not to accept the offer. If . . . if . . ."

"Look, honey," Bart began patiently, "I'm barely clearing $50 a week now. That wouldn't run a house and pay expenses. So you'd better . . ."

The richness of the wool gabardine turned her eyes to deep violet, and the mink added entrancing shadows to her lovely face.

"I'm making $25, Bart. That's $75. And we're not growing any younger. If we can manage as we are, apart, now, we could save by pooling expenses and income. I know we could. There are budgets. Figure every penny."

"I've this suit, Bart—I wouldn't have to buy anything else."

"I should say not. It's a knock-out, honey. But let's figure this."

Industry to Lose Liability Rates

Governor Estimates Loss at One Million Over Petitions

LITTLE ROCK — (AP) — Governor Bailey charged Thursday that the filing of petitions to refer the 1939 workmen's compensation law, making it inoperative until voted upon by the people, would result in a net loss to industry of $1,000,000 annually on liability premium rates.

Bruce Catton Says

In 1920. She made a dive, some valve or other went wrong, and she nestled on the bottom in about 180 feet of water. Luckily, it was a bow compartment only that was flooded.

Skipper of the S-5 was a young lieutenant, C. M. Cooke—now a captain, on the staff of the commander in chief of the fleet. For some reason, all Cookes in the navy get nicknamed "Savvy," and this Cooke was no exception; but before the episode of the S-5 was over, he proved that he deserved the name.

He knew the depth of the water, knew the S-5 was 230 feet long. So he completed the flooding of the extreme bow, blew clear all the other compartments, and caused the stern to float to the surface, the ship resting nose-down at an acute angle, the very tip of her stern breaking the surface—as Cooke proved by shining up there and listening to the waves lapping outside.

There were no "escape lungs" in those days, the S-5 had no stern torpedo tubes, there were no hatches in the tiny part that was above water.

Nebraskan Nips Taxes in Bud by Exposing Expenses to Public

By ROSCOE FLEMING
NEA Service Special Correspondent
DENVER — When you find an entire steel bridge missing and county commissioners trying to treat it as a minor social error—when you find missing a whole carload of gasoline that the public has paid for—when you find $12.25 crested fence-posts called piles and bought for $12.50 each—when you find ledger-books costing $32.50 in one county and $2.50 in the next—then you're really got something on which to go to town with a taxpayer's economy crusade.

That's the hard-boiled approach to economy in government of Frank G. Arnold, president of the Nebraska Association of County Taxpayers' Leagues. Arnold is rapidly making himself the foremost American foe of taxes and useless public spending. New Leases Conspicuously Absent.

So effective has Arnold's work been in Colorado and Nebraska that neither state enacted a single new tax this year, Arnold reports.

"In Nebraska the only tax bill to reach the floor of the unicameral legislature was for a graduated income tax, and it got only seven or eight votes out of 43. In Colorado despite the pressure exerted by advocates of the old age pension and by other spending blocs, no new taxes were enacted."

"I find a growing interest in our Nebraska method of exposing all local public expenditures to the light of public scrutiny. When people know to the last cent what their money is being spent for, public officials hesitate to spend it extravagantly."

In Nebraska, Arnold's associations are organized virtually through the state. In Colorado, the Governmental Research Association financed by contributions of wealthy and high-tax-paying Coloradans, has already subjected 26 of the 63 counties to the Nebraska method of a searching audit and a recapitulation of expenditures for selected years. It is working in seven more counties, and in one of them, Las Animas, a group of county officials have been sent to state prison for stealing everything not bolted down with brass screws.

"That didn't help the county's taxpayers much," notes Arnold. "They have the costs of prosecution to pay as well as the cost of the stealing."

"How much better it would have been to have had militant citizen's organization on the job to scrutinize carefully every public expenditure and every official act!"

Examines Every Little Item.

"The way we do it is tedious and unspectacular. Out of some 18 millions of public spending in the United States, six billions are spent locally. Citizens can do something about this latter drain if they will."

"We look at every little item, every year, in every county that we have organized. The people who support our work are willing to continue the steady non-sensational, even boring scrutiny which alone can force public officials to account for every wasted penny."

"It's the many thousands of small items that amount up. In one county where we audited more than $6,000,000 of expenditures, there were only $200,000 worth of items that could by any stretch of the imagination be called large. The rest went for more than 250,000 small items."

"From my experience, I believe American citizens are becoming more and more capable of just that sort of interest in their local government. Temporary crusades don't get the job done."

Arnold believes that American state legislatures in general appear to have GLENWOOD, June 7 — Harry Eugene Sevier, 13, was killed almost instantly Wednesday when a 22 caliber rifle he was handling was discharged accidentally. The bullet struck him in the chest.

Boy Is Killed as Gun Is Accidentally Fired

With three other boys, Billy Ray Thornton, age nine; E. J. Thornton, 12, and Floyd Sevier, 11, his brother, Harry was at home of a neighbor, Mrs. Otis Thornton.

The boy just returned from swimming in the Gadsden river, and decided to go back to the river to hunt birds. Harry picked up the rifle and started out of the house when the gun was discharged.

This was said to have been the first fatal accident of the kind ever to occur in Glenwood.

There are more than 1,864,643 miles of copper telegraph lines in the United States.

hesitated in "the mad rush to spend," and that it is high time.

"Public expenditures are generally reckoned at about 20 per cent of public income," Arnold says. "But I find that income from government is usually reckoned as part of the gross public income. So I suspect that 40 per cent would be nearer the real proportion than the citizen pays for government."

When the Indian Lived on Buffalo

UNTIL the white man came, the American Indian got no closer to the thundering buffalo herds than the stifling dust of their stampedes. Then the white man taught the Indian to ride and shoot, and with that lesson the life of the plains redmen changed rapidly.

For the Indian found that the buffalo provided practically everything he needed: clothing, shelter, food. The buffalo had a rich meat, the tongue was a particular delicacy. From the fat and meat, the redman made pemmican, a rich paste mixed with berries. Next, the Indian learned to make topees from the buffalo hides and at the same time robes and bedding, shirts, moccasins, leggings, rope. The buffalo hoofs also produced glue and the sinews threaded and bow strings.

So it happened that in a few decades the great buffalo population, estimated as high as 60,000,000 head at one time, dwindled as the redman increased his slaughter. But the real slaughter was to come with the immigrants themselves. Thousands were killed, for instance, to provide meat for the transcontinental railroad builders. Today only a few thousand buffalo are left, safeguarded by government preserves.

Kuhn Has Less To Smile About

than those who have to go."

Arkansas congressmen were notified of presidential approval of two WPA road building projects this week, both in Ellis' district. Execution will be left to the discretion of the state WPA administrator. One calls for a federal contribution of $153,000 to a road building program in Boone county. The other involves Federal aid of $29,000 for work on state Highway 102 in Benton county, near Centerton.

The chances seem to be two to one in favor of virgil Pettie retaining the U. S. Marshal's office at Little Rock. It works out this way.

Pettie has been endorsed by Senator Caraway for reappointment.

Senator Miller has endorsed Herbert Graves of Judsonia to succeed Pettie.

Miller's only chance of winning the patronage squabble is for President Roosevelt to appoint Graves.

On the other hand, Senator Caraway would win if the president reappointed Pettie or appointed no one at all, since Pettie, as incumbent, continues in office until his successor is named.

Due to the failure of the senators to agree on an appointee, President Roosevelt has shown no inclination to offend either by choosing between their candidates.

Senator Caraway, a strong new dealer, might be offended if Graves got

Exhibition Special Will Stop in Hope

Missouri Pacific's Finest Train Will Arrive Here June 13

An opportunity to inspect one of the finest steam passenger trains ever assembled will be given residents of this city at 11:05 a. m. to 12:30 p. m., June 13, when the Missouri Pacific Lines' exhibition special pulls into the local yards for an hour and a half stop in the course of its 2300-mile tour of the west and southwest.

The exhibition special is being operated to stimulate interest in railroading, and to direct attention to improvements which have taken place in passenger train equipment in recent years, according to R. L. McCain, local agent of the Missouri Pacific, who said that the railroad is particularly interested in receiving as many school children as possible aboard the train.

"We realize that the school children of today are the train passengers of tomorrow," said Mr. McCain. "A great many of them have not had the opportunity of seeing for themselves what a modern railroad has to offer in the way of comfort, speed, economy and safety. We believe that a visit to the exhibition special will give them a better insight into modern railroading than could any amount of classroom study."

He added that adults are extended an equally cordial invitation to inspect the train.

Air-conditioned throughout, the train will be made up of a locomotive, baggage car, a grill coach, a deluxe coach, a diner-lounge and a Pullman car.

the appointment. Senator Miller, as chairman of the judiciary subcommittee that would consider the appointment for senate confirmation, could make a fight on Mrs. Caraway's choice.

Crop Prospects Given by U. S. Weather Bureau

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The weather bureau reported rains which fell rather generally over the eastern two-thirds of the country during the past week improved crop prospects, particularly in the northern great plains spring wheat belt.

"The outstanding feature of recent weather in relation to wheat," the bureau said, "is the widespread, beneficial rain in the spring wheat states."

The precipitation ended for the time being, at least, threats of a serious drought in the great plains region and in some corn belt states.

The bureau reported winter wheat harvests were getting underway in Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico.

Camden Is Chosen Site for Baptist Meeting

CAMDEN, June 7 — The annual Arkansas State Baptist Convention will be held in Camden December 5, 6 and 7. It was announced following a meeting of the Executive Committee of the convention at Arkadelphia.

A committee headed by R. E. Shelton, chairman of the Board of Deacons of the First Baptist church of Camden, extended the invitation. Other members of the committee are R. F. Burns, Dr. L. T. Jerry and W. C. McClure.

Completion of the new municipal auditorium which has a seating capacity of 2,500 was one of the decisive factors in securing the convention for Camden.

This will be the first time since 1853 that the convention has been held in Camden.
